Little Dinos Don't Push teaches children about the importance of empathy and kindness through the story of a group of dinosaurs who are playing together. One of the dinosaurs, named Spike, is constantly pushing and shoving the other dinosaurs. The other dinosaurs are upset by Spike's behavior, and they eventually tell him that he needs to stop pushing.

Spike is initially resistant to changing his behavior, but he eventually realizes that he needs to be more kind and considerate to others. With the help of his friends, Spike learns to control his anger and to treat others with respect.
