Poetry in Painting: The Frontiers of Theory is a groundbreaking work that takes this exploration to new and innovative levels. This book brings together a team of leading scholars from a variety of disciplines to examine the relationship between poetry and painting from a variety of perspectives.

The essays in this volume explore a wide range of topics, including:

- The ekphrastic tradition, in which poets respond to works of art in their own writing

- The aesthetic theories that have shaped the relationship between poetry and painting
- The ways in which poetry and painting can be used to represent the visual world
- The interart studies movement, which seeks to break down the boundaries between different artistic disciplines

Poetry in Painting: The Frontiers of Theory is a major contribution to the field of interart studies. This book will appeal to scholars and students of both literature and art, as well as anyone interested in the intersection of these two disciplines.
