Here is a sneak peek of the first chapter:

Aerion stood at the edge of the forest, his heart pounding in his chest. He had been traveling for days, and he was finally close to his destination. The village of Erth was just over the next hill, and there he would find the wizard Eldrin. Eldrin was the only one who could help him defeat the dark force that was threatening to destroy The Wearle.

Aerion took a deep breath and stepped into the forest. The trees were tall and thick, and the air was heavy with the smell of pine needles. Aerion walked for hours, following a winding path that led him deeper and deeper into the forest. As he walked, he could hear the sound of birds singing in the trees and the sound of squirrels scampering through the underbrush.

Finally, Aerion reached a clearing. In the center of the clearing was a small cottage. Aerion walked up to the cottage and knocked on the door. A moment later, the door opened, and an old man with a long white beard peered out at him.

"Can I help you, young traveler?" the old man asked.

"My name is Aerion," the young warrior said. "I have come to seek your help. I have heard that you are a wizard, and that you are the only one who can help me defeat the dark force that is threatening to destroy The Wearle."

The old man smiled. "I am Eldrin," he said. "And I will help you, Aerion. But first, you must tell me more about this dark force."

Aerion told Eldrin about the dark force that he had seen in his dreams. He told him about the creatures that it had created, and the destruction that it had caused.

When Aerion was finished, Eldrin nodded his head. "I know of this dark force," he said. "It is a powerful evil, and it must be stopped. But I cannot do it alone. I will need your help, Aerion."

Aerion looked at Eldrin, and he knew that the old wizard was right. He could not defeat the dark force on his own. He needed Eldrin's help. And together, they would save The Wearle.
