A powerful and moving memoir by Lakota elder Wamditanka, as told to acclaimed author Joy Harjo.

Wamditanka shares her extraordinary life story, from her childhood on the Rosebud Reservation to her decades-long career as a television producer and advocate for Native American rights. Along the way, she offers a unique perspective on the history of Native America, the challenges facing Native communities today, and the importance of preserving Native culture.

Wamditanka's story is one of resilience, courage, and hope. She has witnessed firsthand the devastating effects of colonization and racism, but she has never given up on her people. She has used her voice and her platform to fight for justice and equality for Native Americans. Wamditanka is a role model for all who believe in the power of storytelling to change the world.

“Wamditanka's memoir is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the history of Native America and the challenges facing Native communities today. It is a powerful and moving story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
